In the domestic sugar market during fiscal year 2026–2027, supply exceeded demand. Furthermore, due to the impact of smuggled sugar and commercial fraud, as well as an increase in the import of liquid High Fructose Corn Syrup (HFCS), the market was consistently in an oversupply state, causing sugar product selling prices to drop significantly. Meanwhile, leading to a decline in gross profit margin and consequently a reduction in net profit after tax this period compared to the same period of the previous year.
